

Direct and inverse numerical methods for viscous and nonviscous wave equations

Hyeona Lim

Department of Mathematics
Michigan State University

Abstract

A three-level second-order implicit algorithm is considered for the acoustic wave equation with a source term and also for the viscous wave equation. This method provides a more efficient solution than the conventional two-level algorithm. Stability and error analysis are provided.