

Some comparisons between difference equations and differential equations

Yijun Sun

Department of Mathematics and Statistics
Mississippi State University

Abstract

In this talk, a brief introduction will be given to difference equations. I will also compare some results of difference equations with differential equations. We will see some similarities between the behaviors of the solutions of difference and differential equations as well as the differences between them.